Due to ARCH Profile's multifaceted character and high flexibility, the potential of psychological tests can be extended far beyond pre-employment testing. ARCH Profile will assist you in matching people with the right jobs and teams, the most important steps your company can take to fully explore your employees' potential. It will provide tips on how to motivate individual employees, and information on the kind of environment in which they will thrive. As a human resources tool, ARCH Profile can be used for recruitment and hiring, team assignment and redistribution of positions, employee training, empowerment seminars and trend detection. Every test result is accompanied by in-depth analysis as well as advice and tips to provide a jump-off point for further development.

Psychological test battery

An entire battery of psychological assessments is available for use (for a current list of available tests, refer to the Test Selection Form). Every one of our tests is designed by a team of psychologists, educators, statisticians and artificial intelligence programmers with years of experience in the field. These complex self-scoring assessment tools give test-takers the opportunity to look into their own personality, relationships, career choices, intelligence and health habits. Sophisticated artificial intelligence methods allow for real-time scoring, while providing on-target interpretation and practical, no-nonsense advice. Large-scale validation studies ensure an ever-growing precision and top-notch quality otherwise unseen on the net.

ARCH Profile

ARCH Profile is supported by a sophisticated database system. ARCH Profile allows therapists, guidance counselors and life coaches to assign tests to clients, store and retrieve the results and organize client information. Its many features can be used to view individual or group test results, track progress, display graphs and compare scores across groups. Essentially, ARCH Profile serves as a complete online testing center. For more information please refer to the online Therapists information page located at:

ARCH Profile works with a pre-paid credit system. You can put funds into your account depending on your needs and the number of tests you expect to administer. Once the client completes a test, the amount is actually taken from your account. You can move money from the reserve back into the bank of available funds by un-assigning tests.

ARCH Profile offers pricing flexibility. You can purchase tests credits on an as-needed basis, or get substantial bonuses when buying in bulk (purchases of US$500 or more). Bonuses are automatically credited to your account.
